Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, members of a nonprofit corporation and their representatives may hold a meeting in person or via a telephone conference. Similarly, members of a nonprofit corporation and their representatives may settle issues by a vote held in person or by a written ballot, if certain procedural requirements are met to ensure accountability and fair representation.

This bill allows members of a nonprofit corporation and their representatives to hold meetings and settle issues via electronic communications or electronic ballot if requirements are met that ensure the same level of accountability and fair representation as under current law.
