March 8, 2005 – Introduced by Senators CARPENTER, LASSA and ERPENBACH, cosponsored by Representatives SHERIDAN, LEHMAN, SINICKI and POCAN. Referred to Committee on Labor and Election Process Reform.

4 105.15; and to create 105.01 (1r) (f), 105.01 (3) (intro.) and 105.115 of the 5 statutes; relating to: limiting the amount that a temporary help service,
6 employment agent, employer–paid employment agent, or employer may charge
7 an employee for transportation and providing a penalty.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, an employment agent may not charge an applicant for employment any fee for services rendered that is greater than the maximum fee for the applicable classification of employment fixed by the Department of Workforce Development (DWD) by rule. Currently, DWD rules require an employment agent to clearly advise an applicant for employment as to who is liable for transportation expenses when the applicant is referred to a position outside the city where the employment agent is located. These requirements, however, do not apply to a person whose fees are paid entirely by an employer (employer–paid employment agent) or to a temporary help service, which is a service that employs individuals to render temporary or part–time services to third persons.

This bill provides that if a temporary help service, employment agent, employer–paid employment agent (collectively, “staffing agency”), or employer that has procured the services of an employee from a staffing agency (third-party employer) offers the employee transportation to and from the third-party employer's workplace, the staffing agency or third-party employer may not charge the employee more than the actual cost of the transportation or 3 percent of the employee's total daily earnings, whichever is less, except that the transportation fee may not reduce the employee's total daily earnings to below the minimum wage. The bill also prohibits a staffing agency or third-party employer that requires an employee to use transportation provided by the staffing agency or third-party employer from charging the employee for the transportation. Finally, the bill prohibits a staffing agency or third-party employer from deducting the cost of transportation provided by the staffing agency or third-party employer from the employee's pay without the express written authorization of the employee and requires the staffing agency or third-party employer to furnish a signed copy of the authorization to the employee.

SENATE BILL 106
