4 proceedings.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

Under current law, under a John Doe proceeding, a person who believes a crime has been committed may complain to a judge. Then the judge must ascertain if a crime has been committed. The scope of examination is within the judge's discretion. If the judge determines that a crime has probably been committed, she or he will issue a warrant for the arrest of the accused.

This bill limits an individual who believes a crime has been committed to complaining only to a district attorney under any of the following circumstances: 1) If the alleged crime occurs when the individual is under arrest, incarcerated, imprisoned, or otherwise detained by any law enforcement agency or detained as a sexually violent person; 2) If the alleged crime occurs on the property of the Department of Corrections (DOC), the Department of Health and Family Services (DHFS), or a county jail; 3) If the person who allegedly committed the crime is working as an employee of DOC or DHFS, a law enforcement officer, or a correctional officer. After the individual files a complaint, the district attorney may conduct an investigation of the complaint and may file a complaint.
