1 To amend section 1 of article I of the constitution; relating to: the terms people and
2 person (first consideration).

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

The constitution states that all people are born equally free and independent and have certain inherent rights, among which is the right to life. This constitutional amendment, proposed to the 2013 legislature on first consideration, replaces the phrase "are born equally free and independent" with the phrase "are equally free and independent" and defines the terms "people" and "person" with respect to the right to life to include every human being at any stage of development.

A constitutional amendment requires adoption by two successive legislatures, and ratification by the people, before it becomes effective.
