4 services functions.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill allows county departments of human services or social services (county departments) or, in Milwaukee County, the Department of Children and Families to enter into contracts with each other to perform certain child protective services. This bill also allows a county department to designate a child welfare agency to perform independent investigations.

Under current law, a county department or, in Milwaukee County, DCF is charged with certain duties regarding child protective services, including receiving reports, conducting investigations, providing services, petitioning for services, taking a child or an expectant mother into custody, determining and providing alternative responses, determining whether abuse or neglect has occurred, determining that a specific person has abused or neglected a child, providing notice of reports of suspected abuse or neglect to a tribe, providing training to agency staff, conducting independent investigations, and record keeping.

Current law allows a county department to contract with a licensed child welfare agency to perform some of those functions and allows DCF in Milwaukee County to contract with a licensed child welfare agency to perform all of those functions. This bill allows a county department to contract with one or more other county departments or with DCF to perform those functions on behalf of the county department. The bill also allows DCF in Milwaukee County to contract with one or more county departments to perform those functions on behalf of DCF in Milwaukee County.

Current law requires an independent investigation to be conducted if an agent or employee of an agency is the subject of a report of suspected child abuse or neglect, or if the agency determines that, because of the relationship between the agency and the subject of a report, there is a substantial probability that the agency would not conduct an unbiased investigation. An agency is required to notify DCF of the potential conflict or bias, and DCF, outside of Milwaukee County, must conduct an investigation or may designate a county department or licensed child welfare agency to conduct the independent investigation. In Milwaukee County, a county department or child welfare agency designated by DCF must conduct the independent investigation. This bill also allows a county department to designate, with the approval of DCF, a licensed child welfare agency to conduct the independent investigation on its behalf.
