1     AN ACT to create 813.1283 of the statutes; relating to: the Uniform Recognition
2             and Enforcement of Canadian Domestic Violence Protection Orders Act and 3             providing a criminal penalty.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill adopts the Uniform Recognition and Enforcement of Canadian Domestic Violence Protection Orders Act, approved and recommended by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in 2015. This bill requires the courts of this state to recognize and enforce civil domestic violence protection orders issued by Canadian courts.

Current law incorporates the Uniform Interstate Enforcement of Domestic Violence Protection Orders Act, which allows recognition and enforcement of domestic violence protection orders from other states. This bill expands recognition to civil domestic protection orders issued by Canadian courts. The bill does not address recognition of Canadian criminal orders or custody issues. Under this bill, a law enforcement officer or tribunal can recognize and enforce a civil order issued by a Canadian court that requires no direct or indirect contact with an individual protected by a Canadian domestic violence protection order. A Canadian domestic violence protection order is defined in the bill to mean a judgment or part of a judgment or order issued in a civil proceeding by a court of Canada that relates to domestic violence and prohibits a person from 1) being in physical proximity to or following a protected individual; 2) directly or indirectly contacting or communicating with a protected individual; 3) being within a certain distance of a place or location associated with a protected individual; or 4) molesting, annoying, harassing, or engaging in threatening conduct directed at a protected individual.

The bill provides uniform procedures for enforcement of Canadian domestic violence protection orders. Under the bill, law enforcement officers must determine whether there is probable cause to believe that a valid order exists and has been violated. The bill provides that if a protected individual can provide direct proof of the existence of a facially valid order, for example, by presenting a paper copy or accessing an electronic registry, the copy or registry conclusively establishes probable cause. However, if there is no such direct proof, the bill allows law enforcement to consider other information and make a determination whether there is probable cause to believe that a valid protection order exists and has been violated. If the officer determines that the order cannot be enforced because the person against whom the order was issued has not received appropriate notice, the officer is required to provide notice to the protected individual and then make a reasonable effort to notify the person against whom the order was issued and allow that person an opportunity to comply with the order.

A person against whom an order is enforced will have sufficient opportunity to demonstrate that the order is invalid if and when the case is brought before the enforcing tribunal. Under the bill, a tribunal, defined in the bill as a court, agency, or other entity authorized to establish, enforce, or modify a domestic protection order, may issue an order to enforce or refusing to enforce a Canadian domestic violence protection order following the procedures set forth in current law for enforcement of domestic protection orders. The bill provides immunity for officials for acts and omissions arising out of the filing or enforcement of a Canadian domestic violence protection order, if the act or omission was a good faith effort to comply with the requirements for filing or enforcement.

This bill includes some modifications from, or additions to, the model language recommended by National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. For example, as recommended by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, this bill provides an optional procedure for filing a Canadian domestic violence protection order, but does not require individuals seeking enforcement of a protection order to file the order. The filing procedures in this bill, however, follow the procedures set forth in current law under the Uniform Interstate Enforcement of Domestic Violence Protection Orders Act rather than the model language. This bill also includes a penalty provision for violation of a condition of a protection order.

11 consistent with the safety of the protected individual. After notice to the protected
12 individual and consistent with the safety of the individual, the officer shall make a 13 reasonable effort to inform the respondent of the order, notify the respondent of the 15 allow the respondent a reasonable opportunity to comply with the order before the 16 officer enforces the order.

14 heard before the court issued the order.

15 b. In the case of an ex parte order, the respondent was given a reasonable notice
16 and had or will have an opportunity to be heard within a reasonable time after the 17 order was issued, in a manner consistent with the right of the respondent to due 18 process.

19 (d) A Canadian domestic violence protection order valid on its face is prima
20 facie evidence of its enforceability under this subsection.

21 (e) A claim that a Canadian domestic violence protection order does not comply 22 with par. (c) is an affirmative defense in a proceeding seeking enforcement of the 23 order. If the tribunal determines that the order is not enforceable, the tribunal shall 24 issue an order that the Canadian domestic violence protection order is not

SENATE BILL 369

12 domestic violence protection order. The clerk shall treat any Canadian domestic 13 violence protection order or modification so filed in the same manner as a judgment
14 of the circuit court. Filing of a Canadian domestic violence protection order under 15 the laws of this state is not required for its enforcement under this section.

16 (b) Within one business day after a Canadian domestic violence protection 17 order or a modification of a foreign protection order is filed under this subsection, the 18 clerk of circuit court shall send a copy of the Canadian domestic violence protection
19 order or modification of the order to the sheriff in that circuit or to the local law
20 enforcement agency that is the central repository for orders and injunctions in that 21 circuit.

22 (c) The sheriff or law enforcement agency that receives a copy of a Canadian

10 Canadian domestic violence protection order or the detention or arrest of an alleged 11 violator of a Canadian domestic violence protection order if the act or omission was 12 a good faith effort to comply with this section.

14 seek other legal or equitable remedies.

15 (8) UNIFORMITY OF APPLICATION AND CONSTRUCTION. In applying and construing

17 with respect to its subject matter among states that enact it.

21 or supersede section 101 (c) of that act, 15 USC 7001 (c), or authorize electronic 22 delivery of any of the notices described in section 103 (b) of that act, 15 USC 7003 (b).
