5 violations when railroad workers are present and providing a penalty.

Analysis by the Legislative Reference Bureau

This bill increases the penalties for certain traffic violations that are committed where workers are present in a railroad construction or maintenance area and are at risk from traffic.

Under current law, the amount of any applicable minimum and maximum fine or forfeiture is doubled for specified traffic violations committed where persons working in a highway maintenance or construction area, utility area, or emergency or roadside response area are at risk from traffic. These traffic violations include failing to follow certain traffic signs and signals, failing to follow certain orders of traffic officers, exceeding certain maximum speed limits, and driving recklessly. In addition, if the violation results in an injury to another, the operator may be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned not more than nine months, or both. The bill expands these provisions to apply to violations committed in a railroad construction or maintenance area.

Current law prohibits inattentive driving of a motor vehicle in general and specifically prohibits the use of a wireless telephone while driving a motor vehicle where persons are engaged in work in a highway maintenance or construction area, utility work area, or emergency or roadside response area. The bill expands this prohibition to apply to railroad construction or maintenance areas where workers are present.

Because this bill creates a new crime or revises a penalty for an existing crime, the Joint Review Committee on Criminal Penalties may be requested to prepare a report.
